Making of a Pylon

"Pylon? What's that?" Such was the response most often elicited when the medical school yearbook was mentioned - so often that I began to wonder: Was I the transfer student or were they.

Pylon, I was told by an old timer, was the medical school yearbook. It was last seen in 1970, that being the 1969 edition arriving a year late. I called on "Dean Price" who informed me that student apathy was the culprit. Undaunted by lack of funds, interest, etc., a few senior students decided to produce a Pylon.

Much to our surprise, we at first were unable to get a room in which to work. SAMA, having sponsored previous yearbooks was interested - enough to supply 200 sheets of stationery. Dr. Hales came to our rescue with a room we could use, and thus a yearbook was born.

Mrs. Yerko in steno pool typed all of our letters to potential advertisers and soon some money began to flow. The seniors and juniors were asked to have their photos taken on three different occasions here at the Medical Center. All but four of the seniors did so while less than one half of the juniors were photographed. Student apathy you say. True, but if the student body suffers from apathy, the faculty must have succumbed to the disease long ago.

Forty-seven members of the clinical faculty purchased yearbooks. Five members of the basic sciences faculty purchased yearbooks. Most didn't bother to respond to letters of inquiry as to their desire for a new picture for the yearbook, and so we used those from 1969. When approached to purchase a yearbook, several stated, "I don't have anything to do with the medical students." Having attended many of their lectures, I had to agree.

And so it went. Many potential advertisers with large accounts with the Medical Center were "unable to participate." We wrote to all county medical societies in West Virginia, identifying graduating seniors from each county. Four counties responded. They say they want to get young physicians to stay in the state!

As the New Year approached, a staff of a few set to the final task. To quote the editorial in Pylon 1965, "The book is the result of imagination, unfortunately the imagination of a few people ... Those who imagine with strong difference should state so by producing the next Pylon."

The Oath of Hippocrates

I swear by Apollo the physician and Aesculapius, and Hygieia, and Panacea, and all the gods and goddesses, that, according to my ability and judgement, I will keep this Oath and this stipulation - to reckon him who taught me this Art equally dear to me as my parents, to share my substance with him, and relieve his necessities if required; to look upon his offspring in the same footing as my own brothers, and to teach them this Art, if they shall wish to learn it, without fee or stipulation; and that by precept, lecture, and every other mode of instruction, I will impart a knowledge of the Art to my own sons, and those of my teachers, and to disciples bound by a stipulation and oath according to the law of medicine, but to none others. I will follow that system of regimen which, according to my ability and judgement, I consider for the benefit of my patients, and abstain from whatever is deleterious and mischievous.

I will give no deadly medicine to anyone if asked, nor suggest any such counsel; and in like manner I will not give to a woman a pessary to produce abortion.

With purity and with holiness I will pass my life and practice my Art.

Into whatsoever houses I enter, I will go into them for the benefit of the sick, and will abstain from every voluntary act of mischief and corruption; and, further, from the seduction of females or males, of freemen and slaves. Whatever, in the connection with my professional practice, or not in connection with it, I see or hear, in life of men, which ought not to be spoken of abroad, I will not divulge, as reckoning that all such should be kept secret.

While I continue to keep this Oath unviolated, may it be granted to me to enjoy life and the practice of the Art, respected by all men, in all times. But should I trespass and violate this Oath, may the reverse be my lot.

West Virginia University School of Medicine has reached a crucial period in its development. The spurt of physical growth has finished. We are on the threshold of a promising period of internal growth and change. At a time like this it is sometimes difficult to remove old trappings that lend a comfortable and secure tone. These can be definite obstacles to the development of a strong teaching program, which is the primary objective of medical education in the 'Seventies.

Dean Frank McKee, appointed in 1970, has come to W.V.U. in this time of great promise. He has vast experience as a teacher, researcher, and administrator, and he brings with him a fresh attitude toward medical education. This is reflected in his attempts to integrate students into various executive committees of the medical school, and his support of the pass-fail grading system. He has shown an eagerness to support student projects and has gone out of his way to find funding for many of these projects. - Above all, Dean McKee is approachable. He sincerely and eagerly talks with students without making them feel that he is doing them a favor ... qualities we find in too few administrators.

Recognizing that his qualities and insight will help to shape our worthwhile beginning into an even stronger future, we dedicate Pylon 1972 to Dr. Frank W. McKee.

A DREAM

I wasn't one to dream until I entered medical school; then a particular dream began to recur continuously:

I was chained to a stake in the middle of a farm yard and surrounded by four husky farmers with stainless steel pitch forks. Each of these farmers was forking bullshit at me as fast as he could work. All I had was a teaspoon to use and hopefully keep myself from being suffocated.

During the summer vacation the dream went away. As I began my sophomore year in medical school it turned more hideous than ever. In my sophomore year, somebody stole my teaspoon.
